

Drew Adams

I am a recently licensed, young architect at a mid-sized firm who would offer a different and under-represented perspective to council. Though early in my career, I have a breadth of experience in many areas of practice ranging from overseeing a variety of projects as project architect to business-side activities such as extensive involvement responding to RFPs.

Three areas I will aim to contribute to include:

1. Advocating examination of the broken RFP system and what ways the OAA can affect reform.
2. Contributing to the next steps of developing the new OAA Awards program.
3. Representing young architects and the issues facing them as well as liaising with the newly formed Intern's Committee.

I see participating on council as an opportunity to continue contributing to the profession as I have through my involvement teaching at UofT, participating in the OAA Roundtable on Affordable Housing and related volunteerism on Habitat for Humanity's Land Development Committee.
